

Jianhong Liu is Professor of Criminology of University of Macau and University Chair Professor at Southwest University of Political Science and Law, China. From 2009, he served as elected President of Asian Criminological Society, a member of Campbell Collaboration Criminal Justice Group Steering Committee. He is a member of World Economic Forum Global Agenda Council on Organized Crime, and the President of Macau Society of Criminology. He received his PhD from State University of New York at Albany in 1993. His primary research interests are international and comparative criminology, Asian Criminology, and Chinese crime and Justice. He is the author, editor, or co-editor of 10 books, and has published more than 50 articles and book chapters, many in the most prestigious criminology journals, such as Justice Quarterly, Criminology, British Journal of Criminology, the Journal of Research in Crime and Delinquency. He is currently the editor-in-Chief of Asian Journal of Criminology and is also on the editorial board of 11 academic journals, including Journal of Quantitative Criminology, Crime, Law and Social Change. He was a co-principle investigator (PI: Steve Messner) of a large survey project “Criminal Victimization in Contemporary Urban China: A multi-level Analysis of Survey Data for the City of Tianjin”, funded by US National Science Foundation and PI and Co-PI of many research grants. His research has been funded by United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime, National Institute of Justice of USA. He is currently working on several large research projects, writing, editing and co editing seven books.

Ruohui Zhao, Ph.D., is an assistant professor of criminology at the University of Macau, China. She received her PhD in criminology and criminal justice from University of Nebraska at Omaha, USA. Her research interests include criminological theory, comparative studies in crime and criminal justice, and corrections. Her publications have appeared in Social Forces, Journal of Criminal Justice, and Asian Journal of Criminology.

Haiyan Xiong, Ph.D., is an associate professor of law at the Southwest University of Political Science and Law, China. She served as a prosecutor at the Guangzhou Prosecutions Office for several years before she earned her PhD in criminology. Her research areas are criminal law, criminological theory, comparative studies in crime and criminal justice, and corrections. Her publications have appeared in Macao Studies.

Jinlin Gong is a Ph.D candidate in criminology at the University of Macau. He received a LLM degree from Wuhan University. His research focuses on organized crime, International Economic Crime, Drug Crime, and Asian Crime. He is currently serving as a researcher in the Drug Crime and Policies Research Center of Southwest University of Political science and Law, China.